ALLOWED CLAIMS

Claimant Tracking Number	Claimant Confirmation Number	Total Claimed Investments	Claim Status	Claim Amount Submitted	Proposed Amount Allowed
IMPORTANT: The Proposed Amount Allowed column represents the recommended amount of each claim, which will be the number used to calculate each claimant's distribution. If such recommendation is approved by the Court, the Proposed Amount Allowed will be multiplied by the pro rata share of receivership funds available for distribution, divided by total allowed claims. For example, if $20,000,000 of receivership funds are available for distribution and the Court-approved allowed claims total $50,000,000, 40% (calculated as $20,000,000/$50,000,000) will be applied to each Court-Approved Amount Allowed. In this example, if a claim is allowed by the Court in the amount of $10,000, the distribution amount would be $4,000 ($10,000 * 40%), less Paypal transfer fees if payment via Paypal was selected when the claim was submitted.

Claimant Tracking Number	Claimant Confirmation Number	Total Claimed Investments	Claim Status	Claim Amount Submitted	Proposed Amount Allowed
IMPORTANT: The Proposed Amount Allowed column represents the recommended amount of each claim, which will be the number used to calculate each claimant's distribution. If such recommendation is approved by the Court, the Proposed Amount Allowed will be multiplied by the pro rata share of receivership funds available for distribution, divided by total allowed claims. For example, if $20,000,000 of receivership funds are available for distribution and the Court-approved allowed claims total $50,000,000, 40% (calculated as $20,000,000/$50,000,000) will be applied to each Court-Approved Amount Allowed. In this example, if a claim is allowed by the Court in the amount of $10,000, the distribution amount would be $4,000 ($10,000 * 40%), less Paypal transfer fees if payment via Paypal was selected when the claim was submitted.

Claimant Tracking Number	Claimant Confirmation Number	Total Claimed Investments	Claim Status	Claim Amount Submitted	Proposed Amount Allowed
IMPORTANT: The Proposed Amount Allowed column represents the recommended amount of each claim, which will be the number used to calculate each claimant's distribution. If such recommendation is approved by the Court, the Proposed Amount Allowed will be multiplied by the pro rata share of receivership funds available for distribution, divided by total allowed claims. For example, if $20,000,000 of receivership funds are available for distribution and the Court-approved allowed claims total $50,000,000, 40% (calculated as $20,000,000/$50,000,000) will be applied to each Court-Approved Amount Allowed. In this example, if a claim is allowed by the Court in the amount of $10,000, the distribution amount would be $4,000 ($10,000 * 40%), less Paypal transfer fees if payment via Paypal was selected when the claim was submitted.

IMPORTANT: The Proposed Amount Allowed column represents the recommended amount of each claim, which will be the number used to calculate each claimant's distribution. If such recommendation is approved by the Court, the Proposed Amount Allowed will be multiplied by the pro rata share of receivership funds available for distribution, divided by total allowed claims. For example, if $20,000,000 of receivership funds are available for distribution and the Court-approved allowed claims total $50,000,000, 40% (calculated as $20,000,000/$50,000,000) will be applied to each Court-Approved Amount Allowed. In this example, if a claim is allowed by the Court in the amount of $10,000, the distribution amount would be $4,000 ($10,000 * 40%), less Paypal transfer fees if payment via Paypal was selected when the claim was submitted.

IMPORTANT: The Proposed Amount Allowed column represents the recommended amount of each claim, which will be the number used to calculate each claimant's distribution. If such recommendation is approved by the Court, the Proposed Amount Allowed will be multiplied by the pro rata share of receivership funds available for distribution, divided by total allowed claims. For example, if $20,000,000 of receivership funds are available for distribution and the Court-approved allowed claims total $50,000,000, 40% (calculated as $20,000,000/$50,000,000) will be applied to each Court-Approved Amount Allowed. In this example, if a claim is allowed by the Court in the amount of $10,000, the distribution amount would be $4,000 ($10,000 * 40%), less Paypal transfer fees if payment via Paypal was selected when the claim was submitted.

If such recommendation is approved by the Court, the Proposed Amount Allowed will be multiplied by the pro rata share of receivership funds available for distribution, divided by total allowed claims. For example, if $20,000,000 of receivership funds are available for distribution and the Court-approved allowed claims total $50,000,000, 40% (calculated as $20,000,000/$50,000,000) will be applied to each Court-Approved Amount Allowed. In this example, if a claim is allowed by the Court in the amount of $10,000, the distribution amount would be $4,000 ($10,000 * 40%), less Paypal transfer fees if payment via Paypal was selected when the claim was submitted.

Claimant Tracking Number	Claimant Confirmation Number	Total Claimed Investments	Claim Status	Claim Amount Submitted	Proposed Amount Allowed
IMPORTANT: The Proposed Amount Allowed column represents the recommended amount of each claim, which will be the number used to calculate each claimant's distribution. If such recommendation is approved by the Court, the Proposed Amount Allowed will be multiplied by the pro rata share of receivership funds available for distribution, divided by total allowed claims. For example, if $20,000,000 of receivership funds are available for distribution and the Court-approved allowed claims total $50,000,000, 40% (calculated as $20,000,000/$50,000,000) will be applied to each Court-Approved Amount Allowed. In this example, if a claim is allowed by the Court in the amount of $10,000, the distribution amount would be $4,000 ($10,000 * 40%), less Paypal transfer fees if payment via Paypal was selected when the claim was submitted.

Claimant Tracking Number	Claimant Confirmation Number	Total Claimed Investments	Claim Status	Claim Amount Submitted	Proposed Amount Allowed
IMPORTANT: The Proposed Amount Allowed column represents the recommended amount of each claim, which will be the number used to calculate each claimant's distribution. If such recommendation is approved by the Court, the Proposed Amount Allowed will be multiplied by the pro rata share of receivership funds available for distribution, divided by total allowed claims. For example, if $20,000,000 of receivership funds are available for distribution and the Court-approved allowed claims total $50,000,000, 40% (calculated as $20,000,000/$50,000,000) will be applied to each Court-Approved Amount Allowed. In this example, if a claim is allowed by the Court in the amount of $10,000, the distribution amount would be $4,000 ($10,000 * 40%), less Paypal transfer fees if payment via Paypal was selected when the claim was submitted.

IMPORTANT: The Proposed Amount Allowed column represents the recommended amount of each claim, which will be the number used to calculate each claimant's distribution. If such recommendation is approved by the Court, the Proposed Amount Allowed will be multiplied by the pro rata share of receivership funds available for distribution, divided by total allowed claims. For example, if $20,000,000 of receivership funds are available for distribution and the Court-approved allowed claims total $50,000,000, 40% (calculated as $20,000,000/$50,000,000) will be applied to each Court-Approved Amount Allowed. In this example, if a claim is allowed by the Court in the amount of $10,000, the distribution amount would be $4,000 ($10,000 * 40%), less Paypal transfer fees if payment via Paypal was selected when the claim was submitted.

Claimant Tracking Number	Claimant Confirmation Number	Total Claimed Investments	Claim Status	Claim Amount Submitted	Proposed Amount Allowed
IMPORTANT: The Proposed Amount Allowed column represents the recommended amount of each claim, which will be the number used to calculate each claimant's distribution. If such recommendation is approved by the Court, the Proposed Amount Allowed will be multiplied by the pro rata share of receivership funds available for distribution, divided by total allowed claims. For example, if $20,000,000 of receivership funds are available for distribution and the Court-approved allowed claims total $50,000,000, 40% (calculated as $20,000,000/$50,000,000) will be applied to each Court-Approved Amount Allowed. In this example, if a claim is allowed by the Court in the amount of $10,000, the distribution amount would be $4,000 ($10,000 * 40%), less Paypal transfer fees if payment via Paypal was selected when the claim was submitted.

For example, if $20,000,000 of receivership funds are available for distribution and the Court-approved allowed claims total $50,000,000, 40% (calculated as $20,000,000/$50,000,000) will be applied to each Court-Approved Amount Allowed. In this example, if a claim is allowed by the Court in the amount of $10,000, the distribution amount would be $4,000 ($10,000 * 40%), less Paypal transfer fees if payment via Paypal was selected when the claim was submitted.

Claimant Tracking Number	Claimant Confirmation Number	Total Claimed Investments	Claim Status	Claim Amount Submitted	Proposed Amount Allowed
IMPORTANT: The Proposed Amount Allowed column represents the recommended amount of each claim, which will be the number used to calculate each claimant's distribution. If such recommendation is approved by the Court, the Proposed Amount Allowed will be multiplied by the pro rata share of receivership funds available for distribution, divided by total allowed claims. For example, if $20,000,000 of receivership funds are available for distribution and the Court-approved allowed claims total $50,000,000, 40% (calculated as $20,000,000/$50,000,000) will be applied to each Court-Approved Amount Allowed. In this example, if a claim is allowed by the Court in the amount of $10,000, the distribution amount would be $4,000 ($10,000 * 40%), less Paypal transfer fees if payment via Paypal was selected when the claim was submitted.

Claimant Tracking Number	Claimant Confirmation Number	Total Claimed Investments	Claim Status	Claim Amount Submitted	Proposed Amount Allowed
IMPORTANT: The Proposed Amount Allowed column represents the recommended amount of each claim, which will be the number used to calculate each claimant's distribution. If such recommendation is approved by the Court, the Proposed Amount Allowed will be multiplied by the pro rata share of receivership funds available for distribution, divided by total allowed claims. For example, if $20,000,000 of receivership funds are available for distribution and the Court-approved allowed claims total $50,000,000, 40% (calculated as $20,000,000/$50,000,000) will be applied to each Court-Approved Amount Allowed. In this example, if a claim is allowed by the Court in the amount of $10,000, the distribution amount would be $4,000 ($10,000 * 40%), less Paypal transfer fees if payment via Paypal was selected when the claim was submitted.

Claimant Tracking Number	Claimant Confirmation Number	Total Claimed Investments	Claim Status	Claim Amount Submitted	Proposed Amount Allowed
IMPORTANT: The Proposed Amount Allowed column represents the recommended amount of each claim, which will be the number used to calculate each claimant's distribution. If such recommendation is approved by the Court, the Proposed Amount Allowed will be multiplied by the pro rata share of receivership funds available for distribution, divided by total allowed claims. For example, if $20,000,000 of receivership funds are available for distribution and the Court-approved allowed claims total $50,000,000, 40% (calculated as $20,000,000/$50,000,000) will be applied to each Court-Approved Amount Allowed. In this example, if a claim is allowed by the Court in the amount of $10,000, the distribution amount would be $4,000 ($10,000 * 40%), less Paypal transfer fees if payment via Paypal was selected when the claim was submitted.

IMPORTANT: The Proposed Amount Allowed column represents the recommended amount of each claim, which will be the number used to calculate each claimant's distribution. If such recommendation is approved by the Court, the Proposed Amount Allowed will be multiplied by the pro rata share of receivership funds available for distribution, divided by total allowed claims. For example, if $20,000,000 of receivership funds are available for distribution and the Court-approved allowed claims total $50,000,000, 40% (calculated as $20,000,000/$50,000,000) will be applied to each Court-Approved Amount Allowed. In this example, if a claim is allowed by the Court in the amount of $10,000, the distribution amount would be $4,000 ($10,000 * 40%), less Paypal transfer fees if payment via Paypal was selected when the claim was submitted.

For example, if $20,000,000 of receivership funds are available for distribution and the Court-approved allowed claims total $50,000,000, 40% (calculated as $20,000,000/$50,000,000) will be applied to each Court-Approved Amount Allowed. In this example, if a claim is allowed by the Court in the amount of $10,000, the distribution amount would be $4,000 ($10,000 * 40%), less Paypal transfer fees if payment via Paypal was selected when the claim was submitted.

IMPORTANT: The Proposed Amount Allowed column represents the recommended amount of each claim, which will be the number used to calculate each claimant's distribution. If such recommendation is approved by the Court, the Proposed Amount Allowed will be multiplied by the pro rata share of receivership funds available for distribution, divided by total allowed claims. For example, if $20,000,000 of receivership funds are available for distribution and the Court-approved allowed claims total $50,000,000, 40% (calculated as $20,000,000/$50,000,000) will be applied to each Court-Approved Amount Allowed.
